The monograph explores the transformation of Ukraine's pension system in the context of European integration and post-war reconstruction. It examines the theoretical and methodological foundations of pension provision, analyzes the evolution of pension reform in Ukraine, and reviews foreign experience in pension system organization. The study assesses the current state of the Ukrainian pension system, including the dynamics of pension payments, financial sustainability, and the impact of reforms. The monograph is intended for scholars and practitioners interested in pension system reform, policymakers, and those studying financial, economic, and social aspects of pension provision in Ukraine.
